Husband: Honey, the Cable is out again. I'm gonna see what I can find on the "Over the Air" channels.

Husband: Ok. I got that movie channel. Let's see.... Honey, can you make me a couple a tacos while you're out in the kitchen? Oh, this is costume drama... looks like mid to late 1800's. .. Oh, its like a "Pride and Prejudice" movie, set in France though. The description says that it is about this poor, virginal, farm boy, who travels to Paris (the City of Enlightenment) to get an education on modern methods of harvesting grain, and, most importantly, the milling and handling of Flour, which will improve the quality of life for everyone in his town. However, he falls prey to a wizened, old, narcissistic, lecher who is only interested in manipulating the boy for his own personal aggrandizement. In the end, the boy learns little of value, and returns back to his town with nothing, much to everyone's detriment and disappointment.

Wife: Wow, that sounds D E P R E S S I N G. What else is on?

Husband: Well, PBS is showing Les Misérables. But it is almost the end of the movie. The part where Inspector Javert drowns himself in the river. Though this version has Valjean swimming in after him...along with his little dog. Oh...this must be the gay Paris version.

Husband: Now this is more like it. A police drama. A female cop is pulling up next to this questionable looking jogger. She's rolling down the window. Looks like this will be an interesting confrontation. Oh, hey, the jogger character is the same actor that was on the other channel playing Inspector Javert. What are the odds of that? I'll turn up the volume so you can hear.

Cop: Hey bud. You loose your pants?

Jogger: No.

Cop: So, those briefs you're wearin are actually running shorts?

Jogger: Oui. Blue, Red, and White. In solidarity with France. Give me half a minute and I'll show you the Eiffel Tower.

Cop: Whoa, keep le petite hors d'oeuvre in you're shorts. And, a word to the wise, keep your hand over the little guy, this is a bad neighborhood, you're gonna want to be able to defend your peedom.

FFFZZZZZZFZTTTT

Husband: Hey, Honey, the Cable came back on! You done with those tacos yet?

Wife: Make you're own damn tacos. I'm goin to the Hash.
