Math Lobotomy

E = Energy. The inherent capacity or enthusiasm to consume beer.

M = Mass. The inertial measure of the amount of beer consumed.

C = Speed of Light. The measure of time needed for Light beer to pass through you.

Hammered = The property or state-of-being possessed of too much Energy resulting in too much Mass.

I arrived early and got a grand tour of the Hammered Villa (way too nice to be entertaining hashers, even if there are half unpacked moving boxes everywhere). After entertaining and flitting about with the burgeoning gathering of Hashers, Hammered tentatively approaches me (about a good 10 minutes past what should be normal Chalk Talk time), and asks, "so...who is gonna do Chalk Talk"? I thought that this was just some seductive way to get me ensnared in a light-hearted conversation, so I batted my eyes and said, "I think that the ...HARE is probably gonna do the Chalk Talk". But she was a wily one, she stared down at her feet as she shuffled her one foot back and forth, "Well, I kinda gotta go lay trail, so I kinda can't exactly do the actual Chalk Talk". I decided that the seduction had taken it's leave, so I promptly stopped batting my eyes.

After giving Hammered a handful of minutes of a head start, I gave a perfunctory Chalk Talk. Well, to be quite honest, there was a little issue with the one mark that Hammered used, which was SBC. As it turns out this is a Singapore Back Check. As if a regular back check isn't egregious enough, a SBC does not specify which of the marks is actually going to be the new check. (Towards the end of the hash, Noah confidently identified that the 20th mark back from the SBC was the actual new check. Fortunately for me, I spied the diverging trail long before I got anywhere near the SBC.)

Oh, while we are talking about marks, Hammered used 3 parallel marks to signify a False. Apparently this usage is common in many Kennels but this caused some minor confusion since Pittsburgh has long used 3 parallel marks to signify a Hazard/Dangerous Obstacle.

The après was excellent. In fact it was endowed with much Energy and before long it had accumulated a pleasant Mass. A wide variety, and healthy quantity of beers (a personal shout out to the Penn Weizen). Enough homemade food so that it was not necessary for anyone to lick the bottoms of the serving dishes for lack of satiety (another shout out to the Rice Pudding).

Posthumously, DM

That Einstein was a hasher is quite obvious from this quote, "Two things are infinite, the Universe and human stupidity, and I'm not sure about the Universe".
